It is hard to think of a more mismatched pair than the first two artists honored on U.S. stamps. One was a realist; the other an abstractionist. The realist was a kindly gentleman who painted sentimental, nostalgic scenes of Americana. The abstractionist was a hard living, hard drinking, self-proclaimed "wild man" who put the "action" in "action painting." For 10 points each -- name them.

20 POINT BONUS

English adopted the phrase "nouveau riche" (N00-voh REESH) from French and retained the distinctively French way of forming its plural, which is pronounced exactly like the singular. For 10 points per word -- spell the plural form of nouveau riche.
