Things to Do in LA

Prepare for May Madness in LA

Students from Univ. of Maryland-Baltimore County, en route to their first-ever NCT berth.

Following an exciting Regional Championship weekend, sixteen teams can think sunshine and movie stars because they are on their way to Southern California for the College Bowl NCT.

From February 22nd to the 25th, teams competed for the chance to represent their region at the NCT. Campuses across the country were enthralled by the thrilling gameplay.

Region 1 was tough, with Williams College nudging Providence College for the championship. The Friars' performance earned them the coveted NCT Wild Card berth.

Fair play and equal access were highlighted in region 2, where a hearing impaired player from RIT was able to compete, thanks to a unique combination of ASL translation and PowerPoint. RIT fought to a third place finish, behind University of Rochester and the NCT-bound St. Bonaventure Bonnies.

The combined tourney for regions 8 and 9 will send Northwestern and Purdue to Los Angeles, while regions 3 and 4 will be represented by Seton Hall and NCT newcomers Univ. of Maryland-Baltimore County. Joining UMBC as tournament first-timers will be Southern Virginia Univ. and Univ. of Missouri-Columbia.

Ohio State and Baylor return to the NCT for the second consecutive year, representing regions 7 and 12, respectively.

In the west, NCT hosts USC bested cross-town rival UCLA for the region 15 crown. The Trojans will get no homecourt advantage, however, as NCT games will be held at the Los Angeles Marriott Downtown, in the heart of LA's skyline.

Minnesota-Twin Cities, Florida, and 2005 NCT host Washington round out the NCT field.
